

I must make apologies for doing exactly what I am going to bitch about in just a few lines, but those upon whom I shall vent my spleen can content themselves with the fact that I am including myself when I say these things.

Attendance: Greenfield late for both supervising and 6:30 - 9:00 monitoring shift. Johnny Martin had things well in hand and was giving some heelers a little practice. Weinig didn't show up for his announcing shift. I received no notice of this and was informed of no substitute although Bosh and MacDonald did their best. Jewett didn't show up for his shift. King and I handled it. These men were absent last week too!

Monitoring: Heeler Pitcher did a very competent job. Only complaint is the acute shortage of assigned men.

Announcing: Only absences to report.

News: ~~More~~ Everything kopascetic (?).

Sports: Same.

Continuity: Everything in order, except that there was no traffic schedule for monitor

Business: No commercial list.

Public Relations: Nothing to report.

Records: Everything in order except that there was no Symphony Hall. We have had trouble with this before. Let's have some emergency lists made up in case ~~there is~~ it doesn't show up again.

Technical: Everything we have had working worked tonight.

Heelers: Heelers Hussey, Gradison, and especially Pitcher did above average work tonight. Although the studios were in terrible condition upon my arrival they cleaned it up as soon as I reminded them that they were responsible for it.

At the risk of becoming repetitious let me again speak of this attendance business. You simply can't fail to show up for an assigned shift without causing the station a lot of worry and confusion, to say nothing about bringing the wrath of all those affected down upon your head. If you are unable to take a shift inform the supervisor and get a replacement!

Respectfully submitted,

Art Greenfield
